Executive Summary

We are calling for leaders, change makers, activists and citizens from all sectors of society and across the spectrum of companies and organisations to join like-minded others and take time to clarify and strengthen our contribution in a world facing increasing threats to itself and its people.

What can you expect?

The weekend retreat is a deep exploration of how you and other leaders can best use our collective experience, influence, skills, and heart in service to this time. Meg will lead us in an exploration of what it means to be a Warrior for the Human Spirit. Using a variety of processes for debate, reflection and clarity, we will:

- Look clearly at what is happening in our world - from personal to local to global
- Explore when we each have been a 'Warrior for the Human Spirit' and the conditions that were present that enabled our bravery

By the end of the workshop you will:

- Identify our personal reactions and triggers and develop wiser responsiveness to guide our actions
- Understand the core skills of being a Warrior for the Human Spirit & create a personal developmental plan
- Build a connection with this network of like-minded people
