

Are You an Optimist or a Pessimist?

Margaret Wheatley ©2019

Some people want to put us into a category.

Some people only feel good when they know where they fit.

Are you an optimist?

A pessimist?

Really, there's only one right answer. You have to be an optimist.

Otherwise you're a drag. No fun to be around. Dr. Death.

And a new term, you're from the "Doomsphere."

In the past, we were taught to note our worldview by looking at a glass of water.

Is the glass half empty? Is it half full?

Your answer defines your identity: Gloom and doom or hopeful and great to hang out with.

What a nonsensical question this is. Is the glass half full or half empty?

Who cares?!

The right question for Warriors is:

Who needs the water and how can we get it to them?

What is the work that needs doing and how can I contribute to making it happen?

No labels. Just seeing clearly what needs to be done and stepping up to do it.
